Your mission: Archaeologists extracted core samples AA and XX from building timber in two different excavations in Egypt, and based on other artifacts they think the age of the sites probably lies between 1,000BC and 3,000BC. Using the local Egyptian dendrochronology xylem catalog below find the year of the last annual ring in both sample AA and sample XX.